SHERIFF, DWYER'S MOTHER ON STAND

BARBARA CARROLL

By JOHN BRADFORD MAIN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 6 — When former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll was arrested on a morals charge, involving his daughter, Barbara, he "turned around a couple of times" and said:

"Sheriff, you don't think I had anything to do with that Littlefield murder, do you?"

Carroll was so quoted today by his former superior, High Sheriff Fernando F. Francis.

The state called Sheriff Francis to the stand as Carroll's trial for the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield went into its sixth day.

After cross-examination of the sheriff by Defense Counsel Clyde R. Chapman, the trial was adjourned for the day.

Hearing of testimony will be resumed Monday.

Under direct examination by Special Prosecutor Ralph M. Ingalls, Francis told how his suspicions were aroused against Carroll, then his deputy, after the Littlefield slaying, last October.

He said he placed Carroll under arrest, not for the murder but on a morals charge, at Thomaston state prison.

It was then, Francis said, that Carroll referred, "out of a clear sky," to the Littlefield murder.

Back at work in the Thomaston state prison clothing factory today was youthful Paul N. Dwyer, serving a life sentence for the Littlefield slaying, which he confessed before he accused Carroll.

This was the first time since the beginning of the trial that Dwyer was not present to face Carroll, whom he accuses of being the real slayer not only of Dr. Littlefield but also of the doctor's wife, Lydia.

Paul Dwyer's mother, Mrs. Jessie Dwyer, had been an earlier witness today.

She told of bringing Paul, her son, to South Paris when he was a boy of six. She also told of her acquaintance with Dr. Littlefield.

Ready to be called to the stand, as a state witness, was a so-called "boy friend" of Barbara Carroll.

Soon after court convened, with the usual throng of thrill-avid spectators filling every available seat, Prosecutor Ingalls called Mrs. Dwyer, Paul's mother.

As the sheriff was being questioned the spectators were still talking about the surprise move to call Barbara's new boy friend.

The decision to call him as a defense witness was made following the testimony of Paul Dwyer

Douglas Corrigan, America's newest air hero, will land at the Boston airport Monday afternoon at 12:50 for a welcome and celebration recalling the days of Lindbergh, Amelia Earhart, Hegenberger and Admiral Byrd.

Half of the city's residents will line the streets, many of them on half holiday, when the unruffled little Californian flies in on an airliner with Louis Brems, official city greeter.

Official arrangements previously called for an all-Irish reception committee, headed by Mayor Tobin. Last minute developments pointed to him winding up as the guest of the Italians.

This unexpected change in the Corrigan reception program took place when members of the Italian colony here demanded a spot on the official committee of welcome.

They based their claim on the fact that Christopher Columbus, their illustrious fellow-countryman, was the first "wrong way" pilot in history.

TOBIN TO GREET DOUG

More than 600 officers will be assigned to the celebration detail, with two Corrigans and two aviators forming his personal bodyguard. They are Patrolmen John J. Corrigan and Joseph R. Corrigan and Patrolmen Daniel K. Eldridge and Wilbur B. Costello, the latter two pilots.

In addition to the large citizens committee, a group of 62 Boston Corrigans will greet the air hero at the State House. Mayor Tobin will meet him at the airport and ride over a triumphant route which includes downtown Boston and stops at State House and City Hall.

4 Boys Can't Find New Home

Wanted: "Mr. and Mrs. Robinson," by their four sons: William, 11; Henry, 10, Wilbert, 9, and Patrick, 8.

The four youngsters were found cowering in a doorway in Homestead street, Roxbury, by Patrolmen Carl Fetler and Horace Foley of the Dudley street station. The boys had wandered all night in search of the Roxbury home to which they moved a day ago.

They said they were taken from Malden to Charlestown by their parents on Monday and Thursday the family moved to the vicinity of Homestead street. After a day at Franklin Park, the boys were unable to find their home.

2000 Promoted In British Army

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The war office announced the promotion of more than 2000 army officers today as the first result of War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha's new program to make army life more attractive.

More than one-third of the army's captains and lieutenants were stepped up in consequence of the war minister's abolition of the system in use since 1871 whereby promotions were dependant upon vacancies.

The promotions, effective August 1, were listed in a special 26-page supplement of the London Gazette—the largest ever issued.

Chest Hurt In Crush

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP)—Douglas Corrigan, fortune's darling in a comedy of error, wouldn't let a chest injury keep him today from joining more celebrations honoring his memorable flight to California by way of Ireland.

Mauled by admiring crowds, the irrepressible little Irishman was the chief casualty of the welcome parade staged for him yesterday—a tumultuous tribute during which 1,000,000 spectators showered their idol with 1800 tons of ticker tape and torn telephone books.

Grinning despite his hurt, the 120-pound flier agreed to submit to an X-ray examination of his chest, but insisted he would carry on. He is scheduled to go to Peekskill, N. Y., during the day to inspect the 69th Infantry and is to attend a banquet here tonight at the Hotel Astor.

KEEPS INJURY SECRET

The Broadway parade left even Corrigan a bit misty-eyed. It was a welcome home like that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, the man after whom the little red-haired aviator patterned his life, was given 11 years ago on his return from Paris.

Corrigan made no mention of his injury, but it was noted his side was rigidly taped when he returned to his hotel after a subsequent reception in Brooklyn. Afterward he attended a quiet dinner and heard himself acclaimed by throngs at Lewisohn and Yankee Stadiums before he went to bed.

Because it was 11:20—20 minutes past his bedtime—he yawned a little, weary from a day spent in exchanging greetings with innumerable celebrities and staunchly repeating his story that his epic flight was the result of "an unfortunate error" in navigation.

HOST TO NEWSBOY

He and his brother, Harry, said they believed the injury—a torn chest cartilage — resulted when delirious crowds mobbed him as he left his hotel for the parade up lower Broadway to City Hall.

"Somebody forgot to tear up a phone book," he quipped.

Hearing that Maurice Eike, 14, a Norfolk, Va., newspaper carrier, who hoarded his pennies to come to New York for the parade, got lost and missed it, Corrigan invited the boy to accompany him to Peekskill.

53 Jap Planes Blast Hankow

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Fifty-three Japanese planes raided Hankow, Chinese provisional capital, at noon today, a Reuters dispatch said, bombarded the airdrome and shook the city with terrific explosions.

JEWISH EXILES SET AT 600,000

LONDON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Italian Jewry's fears added another worry today to the task before the intergovernmental refugee committee which seeks sanctuary for the thousands fleeing Nazi Germany.

Italy announced yesterday that she intended "no special persecution" of Jews, but the committee placed the tentative figure of 60,000 Italian Jews on its records, bringing the potential refugee list to approximately five millions.

Jewish sources gave the number of Jews in Italian home territory as 44,000, about one Jew to every 1000 non-Jewish Italians.

SEEK HAVEN

The most acute immediate problem is to find a haven for the mass flow of emigrants from Germany. It was understood that Myron C. Taylor, head of the United States delegation, has indicated that a total of 600,000 persons in Germany and Austria must be settled elsewhere—perhaps at the rate of 100,000 annually.

300,000 FLEE NAZIS

It was estimated more than 300,000 German Jews have settled in other lands since Adolf Hitler assumed power in Germany in 1933, but in the earlier years emigrating Jews were allowed to take 75 per cent of their fortunes out of the country. That has been reduced now about 10 per cent by the Nazi "flight tax."

Reliable estimates placed the cost of settling an emigrant family at between $3500 and $5000—providing another country accepts them.

British Aide Hurt In Air Raid

PARIS, Aug. 6 (INS)—The British consul at Alicante, Spain, was seriously injured today when the consulate was damaged by insurgent bombing planes, messages received here said.

Seventy bombs were dropped on Alicante.

400 Miles in Vain?

Gospel Hikers To Defy Ban

When the Walking Weavers, gospel hiking family, finally reach Boston either tomorrow or Monday, they may discover that their 20-day, 400-mile trek from Baltimore has been in vain.

Attorney General Paul A. Dever says he isn't so sure "Adjutant" Weaver will be allowed to open his rescue mission here.

The Boston Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce have also promised to investigate.

News of this threat reached the "adjutant" and his brood, ranging in age from four to 18, as the family bestirred itself this morning in the barn near Wayland, where they spent the night.

Shaking the hayseed from their clothing and having their breakfast, donated by Mrs. Laura Loynd, proprietress of a local restaurant, Weaver said:

"Ever since we entered Massachusetts, we've been informed we might have trouble. But nothing can stop us, not even the police. I will stand up for my rights as a United States citizen."

Due to the terrific heat, the gospel family covered only two miles yesterday. They are transporting all their worldly possessions as they trudge along, pulling a heavily laden cart.

Julia Gains, But Ruth Weak

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP) — Babe Ruth's 22-year-old adopted daughter, Julie, was doing "very nicely" in the hospital today, but the one-time home run king himself was too weak—for probably the first time on record—to sign autographs.

Ruth was donor of a 500 cubic centimeter blood transfusion for his daughter yesterday. A motorcycle police escort rushed with him from Ebbets Field, where he coaches the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball team, to the hospital.

The daughter underwent an operation a week ago for a glandular condition in the neck. She had failed to rally satisfactorily, showing symptoms of anemia, which made the transfusion necessary.

Beseiged by scores of neighborhood hero worshippers, Ruth excused himself, saying his arm still felt a little weak.

Hospital attaches said a second transfusion probably would not be needed.

Max Baer's Blood Helps Mother

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Jacob Baer was reported "considerably improved" today after receiving a blood transfusion from her son, Max, playboy of America's prize fighting circles. The transfusion was made yesterday.

Pleads In Bank Holdup

"My parents are so poor. My six brothers and two sisters — they need so many things. It was driving me crazy I couldn't help them."

This is what Anthony J. Russo, 24, told the police and what he repeated in court this morning when he was arraigned as a bank bandit in the holdup of the Salem street branch of the Medford Savings Bank.

Russo, who lives on Elizabeth street, Burlington, was captured by police with $2933 of the bank's money in his possession and a loaded revolver in his pocket.

Miss Catherine Nestor, 23-year-old cashier, heroine of the robbery, was in court as a witness.

She identified Russo and described how she had tripped a concealed burglar alarm and kept up a lively exchange of wisecracks with the bandit as she counted out the money—while he kept a revolver pressed against her side.

Russo was arrested 75 yards from the bank as four emergency squad cars rushed to the scene.

Miss Nestor also described how she had observed Russo sitting for an hour in the bank, looking over a travel booklet. Presently armed messengers arrived with a supply of cash.

The holdup took place after the armed messengers had departed.

Girl Demands Bachelor Tax

Anna Corbett, clerk in tax appeals bureau, who is candidate for House from Ward 16, Dorchester. She proposes a tax on bachelors as one way of aiding Cupid and likewise easing the unemployment problem. She favors a weekly levy $2 on all "eligibles" who are earning at least $40 a week. She is confident that such a tax will hasten the steps of many single men altar-ward.

A tax on bachelors! That's what pretty Anna Corbett advocates.

And she's going to file a bill, providing for such a tax, as soon as possible after she's elected to the legislature from Ward 16, Dorchester.

When — and if — she's elected, she'll be the district's first woman representative.

But she's very much in the running, even against 27 male opponents.

For Anna's a girl any bachelor, with eyes in his head, ought to be glad to give his vote, tax threat or no tax threat.

She's a serious-minded young woman, though, in spite of blue eyes, a peaches and cream complexion and honey-colored hair that has a natural wave.

In the office of the state tax appeals board, where she works, she has learned a lot about taxation.

"About five per cent of their income is what bachelors ought to be taxed," she said today.

"I'd exempt 'em, though, unless they were earning at least $40 a week.

"Bt those with an income above that figure are definitely eligible bachelors.

"While they stay single, they're selfish, two ways.

"They're refusing to support a wife. That adds to the number of women who've got to support themselves.

"And they're keeping money out of circulation by not maintaining homes and raising children.

"My tax on bachelors will correct all that. The 'eligibles' will have to pay about $2 a week to the state. This will go into a fund to relieve unemployment.

"Then, to avoid the tax, more bachelors will marry, less girls will have to work and wages paid by industry will go twice as far.

"See how simple it is?"

Warner Oland

"Oland — of "Charlie Chan" movie fame—is desperately ill in a Stockholm hospital suffering from acute bronchial pneumonia.

Oland's relatives in this country have been told there is no hope for his recovery.

Three cables were received today urging Mrs. Oland to "come at once." They were sent by Dr. Rabe, Oland's physician, at the actor's request.

Plans to catch the Bremen which sailed from New York had to be abandoned when it was learned that it was impossible to reach Manhattan by sailing time.

Mrs. Oland

Mrs. Oland will fly to New York Monday, board the Queen Mary Wednesday, arriving in Southampton four days later.

Hunt Wealthy Recluse's Kin in Vain as She Dies

Unable to locate relatives, authorities today searched through voluminous legal papers for a clue to the intended disposal of a valuable estate of Miss Nellie A. Regan, 68-year-old recluse, found dead in her Hyde Park home.

Bank books containing $12,642 and deeds to extensive property were found in the little home in Barry street, where the woman was found dead of a heart attack.

Medical examiner Timothy Leary, who pronounced death due to natural causes, stated that no will was found immediately although his assistants still were searching through boxes of papers and documents.

After investigation, police declared the woman was the last of her line and had no known relatives. Neighbors, who had missed her for several days from her garden, brought about discovery of her death.

Authorities said she had been very saving. She was seldom seen in the neighborhood, save once a week when she visited a nearby store for a basket of groceries.

Dozen See Priest Bury Pearl White

PARIS, Aug. 6 (AP)—An aged Catholic priest who called Pearl White his benefactress today pronounced the funeral oration for the film star of the old silent thrillers.

She was buried in the presence of only a dozen of her most intimate friends.

Years ago when she bought a country place at Rambouillet she gave the priest, Rev. Theodore Neslay, a little church and burial ground on a cornr of the estate.

"She was a friend and meant very much to me," he said after the funeral ceremony, in the chapel of the American hospital in Paris.

The body of the former star, who died Thursday, was taken to Passy cemetery, where she was buried in a small plot she bought three months ago.

Sh! Heat Wave Seems To Be Over

Thousands of happy week-enders departed for seashore and mountain resorts by every mode of transportation.

Even the prediction of local thunder showers offered little alarm for a citizenry gasping after a week of blistering heat which has seen the mercury reach above 90 degrees on three successive days.

Th temperature hovered around the 80 mark shortly before noon today, with the forecast that a cool wave from the west would bring continued relief tomorrow.

Join Mosquito War, State Urges Citizens

With State Mosquito Control Units laboring at capacity, private citizens today were urged to take up cudgels against the buzzing hordes which have bred since the heavy recent rains.

Ernest Dean, head of the Department of Conservation, declared that, while Massachusetts had not been hard hit like Middle-Atlantic states, the pests have increased three-fold within the last two weeks.

He said that every back yard was a potential breeding place and urged citizens to make their own private war with accepted insect sprays.

Robert P. Shea of Ellison avenue, Dorchester, a city employe since 1911, today took over duties at head of the city sewer division.

He was appointed to the $6000 post by Mayor Tobin and succeeds George W. Dakin of Roxbury, who retired on pension last Monday.

Shots Halt Boys In Chase

LEE, Aug. 6—Four Boston youths were arrested here today in a stolen Wakefield, R. I., car after a wild chase during which a shot was fired by a state trooper, wounding one of the quartet.

The boys gave their names as Stewart R. McDuff, 16, of Manthorne road, West Roxbury; John Harol, 16, of Willowdean avenue, West Roxbury; Paul Healey, 15, Newburg street, Roslindale, and William J. Miller, 16, Aldrich street, Roslindale.

State Troopers Charles R. Boakes and William J. Riley said they saw the boys attempting to siphon gasoline from a doctor's automobile. The Miller boy was wounded in the arm.

Bureau Urges Welfare Study

Detailed study of the city's welfare problem was urged today by the Boston Municipal Research Bureau, which reported to Mayor Tobin that Boston's expenditures for welfare and WPA have reached an all-time high.

The bureau declared one-fifth of Boston's population is now receiving relief of some kind and urged a pay-as-you-go policy.

'Petting Natural,' So Why Worry?

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—"Petting and necking" is "practically universal" among the younger generation, says Warner Leonard Cottrell of Cornell University, but he sees no reason to be alarmed.

"It's a natural and necessary function of the courtship period," the assistant professor of rural social organization told a conference on youth problems.

Hearing on McGlue's Protest Next Week

With all major candidates still in the race for state office at the closing hour for withdrawals, more than 2500 candidates today were chiefly concerned with a last-minute move which would force them to run on stickers.

The possibility was provided by Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State Committee, who filed protests with the State Ballot Law Commission against every candidate for the Executive Council, the Senate and the House.

McGlue charged they were running in districts which did not legally exist, claiming that the Republican controlled Legislature had failed to observe the Constitution which provides for a redistricting every 10 years.

Joseph Kennedy, member of the commission, announced that hearings on the matter would begin next week, probably on Thursday. Republicans ridiculed the entire program and said that should the commission uphold such a protest the matter would be taken to the State Supreme Court.

Only minor candidates for office were among those withdrawing when the deadline for filing was reached.

Carroll Arrest Story Told

about Barbara's "shame letters," the reading of which proved to be the dramatic highlight of Carroll's trial.

It was Attorney Edward J. Beauchamp, Carroll's associate counsel, who revealed the new defense move.

"I expect the witness' testimony will be important," said Attorney Beauchamp.

YOUTH'S NAME SECRET

While Beauchamp would not reveal the youth's name, he indicated that he is a resident of South Pines who attends school in a neighboring city.

His ordeal of three days on the witness stand over, Dwyer was due in court today on the chance further testimony from him might be required.

He spent the night in his cell at Thomaston state prison where authorities reported him as exhausted and sorrowful that he had been forced to bare the contents of the "shame letters" Barbara had written to him—letters, the contents of which she had trusted him to keep secret, letters indicated as the motive for the most horrible dual murders ever commited in the Pine Tree State, the state claims.

BARBARA HURT

Back in South Paris, Barbara—her head high—despite the court revelations by the boy she once loved—was not angry.

Barbara proved to reporters that despite her youth—she isn't yet 18 years old—she was possessed of real courage.

"No, I am not angry at Paul Dwyer. I don't want to create any impression like that. I am hurt, though. Yes, I am really hurt.

"I thought I would break down and cry in the courtroom when those letters were read, but I didn't. I made up my mind to keep my courage up and not make any scene.

"No one can realize though what I went through. I never believed the day would come what I wrote to Paul would be revealed to the whole world—surely, at the time I wrote them, not by Paul.

"I guess everybody in the world will read those letters today.

"Don't you think if he really meant it when he said he loved me so much he would have given these letters back to me? Wouldn't you believe he would at least not talk about them? That is what hurts me."

WILL NEVER WED

Asked if she was planning to be married sometime in the future, Barbara said:

"No. I do not plan to marry anybody ever. I am going to get a job when this trial is over and try and forget it ever happened."

As the trial resumed today the prosecution through the testimony of Dr. Raphael Gilady, had introduced evidence that the belts used to strangle the doctor and his wife were tied differently. Gilady said one was expertly knotted, while the knotting of the other had been done in a clumsy manner.

The strangling of Dr. Littlefield in Dwyer's home was done by a man of great strength. The cords in his throat were crushed back to the spinal column, Dr. Gilady testified.

Dwyer, during his testimony on the witness stand, had said:

"Carroll was a strong man. He never lost any fight in his life except one when he was a soldier in France."

And then Attorney General Franz U. Burkett suddenly shot this question at the medical examiner:

"Were there any other marks of violence on Dr. Littlefield's body?"

A.—There was a crest shaped wound on right side of the doctor's head.

Q.—Was there another mark on the doctor's body? A.—Yes. He had been bruised in the groin.

Q.—What would a man do after receiving a blow in the groin, doctor? A.—The first thing he would probably do would be to drop his hands down by his knees and then double up."

Dwyer had testified that he saw Carroll club Dr. Littlefield with the butt of his gun, the edge of the handle of which is crest shaped.

Dwyer also during his testimony had declared that from the stairway he could see Carroll near Dr. Littlefield and that he saw the slain doctor put his hands down by his knees and double up.

Dr. Gilady was sure there had been blows about the victim's head and body before he finally was sent to his death by strangling of such violence that the throat organs were crushed.

Hunt 2 Men Lost in Dory

Two men in a dory from the Boston trawler Gertrude De Costa and who are believed to be floundering in a heavy fog 16 miles east of Pollock Rip in Vineyard sound today became the object of an intensive coast guard search.

The men, who are not immediately identified, were reported lost by the trawler's captain. The coast guard seaplane V-116, commanded by Lieutenant H. A. Myerson, and crew of the cutter Chelan, patrol boat Argo, speed boats from coast guard surf stations on Cape Cod and picket boats were pressed into service.

Following an early morning search, the V-116 was forced to return to its base at Salem because of heavy fog and thunder squalls.

2 Mexican Teachers Killed, 2 Wounded

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6 (AP)—Word reached here today of the slaying of two federal teachers and the wounding of two others at Zinaparo, Michoacan state, by opponents of the government's program of Socialistic education.

The teachers were attacked by four men during a fiesta July 27, a federal inspector reported. He charged municipal authorities at Zinaparo aided the killers to escape.

BARBARA CARROLL
Leaving Court After "Shame" Letter Ordeal

Carroll Trial Testimony

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 6—Testimony given here today in the trial of former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll for the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield was marked by frequent interruptions.

First witness was Mayor Alexander Allen of North Arlington, N. J., where Paul Dwyer was found asleep in an auto which contained the bodies of Dr. Littlefield and his wife.

Mayor Allen testified he was present when North Arlington authorities were preparing to fly Paul back to Maine. He quoted Paul as saying:

"I hope it isn't Carroll who is coming. He will throw me out of the plane."

Young Dwyer himself testified yesterday that he said this.

Mrs. Jessie Dwyer, Paul Dwyer's mother, was then called.

Q—Did you ever employ Dr. Littlefield as your family physician? A—He attended my mother once.

NURSED FOR DOCTOR

Q—Did Dr. Littlefield ever attend any patient in your home? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Who? A—He had a patient there once for about ten days.

Q—Mrs. Dwyer, did you do nursing for Dr. Littlfield some? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did Paul tell you about Mr. Carroll killing Dr. Littlefield? A—I believe Mr. Carroll's name was never mentioned.

Mrs. Dwyer's examination was brief. The next witness was Sheriff Fernando F. Francis.

Q—Francis M. Carroll is a deputy of yours, sheriff? A—He was.

Q—When did he become a deputy? A—January 16, 1937.

Q—When you received word from New Jersey last October, where did you go? A—To the Littlefield house on Main street, South Paris.

Q—Did you find any evidence of any disturbance? A—No, sir.

Q—Where did you go then? A—To the Dwyer home on Paris Hill.

Sheriff Francis then described the condition in which he found the Dwyer home.

His description closly parallelled that of other witnesses including young Dwyer's own description of the condition in which he left the house.

After examining the house, the sheriff stated, he went out to the back lawn.

Q—Did you observe anything on the ground in the way of marks? A—There were wheel tracks of a car where it had driven up and turned.

Q—Did you observe any special thing other than that on the ground at that time? A—There were several small spots of fresh ashes.

Q—Did you find any article there? A—I did.

Q—I'll hand you State's Exhibit 24 and ask you what that is? A—A cigarette lighter.

Q—Where did you ever see that lighter before? A—I found that lighter near where the spots of ashes were. Squarely in the middle of the wheel tracks. It was standing at an angle of about 45 degrees.

Q—Do you know whose it is? A—I don't.

OTHER VISITS TO HOME

Q—What time did you get the message concerning the death of Dr. Littlefield? A—It was about 25 minutes or half past 8 Saturday morning, October 16.

Q—What time was it that you found the lighter? A—I got to the Dwyer home about 9 o'clock. I would say it was before 9:30.

Q—When did you go to New Jersey? A—I went that same day.

Q—How did you go? A—By train to Portland and by plane from there.

Q—Did you at any time prior to your departure advise the New Jersey authorities to come by plane? A—I did, yes, sir.

Q—When did you again visit the Dwyer home? A—Upon my return and again the following Monday morning.

Q—Who was there with you that Monday morning? A — Sheriff Burnell of Cumberland County, Carroll and Dwyer.

Sheriff Francis was shown the purported confession made and signed by young Dwyer on that occasion.

Q—Was Francis Carroll an active deputy? A—He was.

Q—Did you ever observe on him at any time the excessive use of liquor during that time? A—No, never.

CARROLL USED LIQUOR

Q—Since then have you noticed any excessive use of liquor on his part? A—I am sorry to say that I have on frequent occasions.

Q—Since Oct., 1937, did you notice any difference in his demeanor about your office building? A—I did.

Sheriff Francis was questioned concerning the night of the murder, Oct. 13.

CARROLL'S WHEREABOUTS

He stated that Sidney Varrell, the turnkey, was absent from the sheriff's office in county jail that night.

Carroll later, Sheriff Francis said, sought to establish it that he, Sheriff Francis, "was in Augusta that night."

Q—Were you in Augusta that night? A—I was not. I was all alone with my wife that night in the building.

Q—Do you know where Carroll was? A—I don't. No, sir.

Q—Was there any conversation after that between you and Carroll or among your other deputies in your presence as to where each of you was that night? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember what remarks Carroll made? A—No, I don't. I told him that I wanted to know definitely where he was and where Barbara was between six and ten that night.

Q—Did he tell you? A—No.

HAD BARBARA EXAMINED

Q—Has he ever told you? A—No.

Q—How many ——

Sheriff Francis interrupting—

"I'd like to amend that last. He partly accounted for Barbara that night. He said she was with a boy in Lovell.

Q—Did you ask him how he knew that? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever request Carroll to have an examination of Barbara made by a physician? A—I did.

Q—How long was that after the morning of Oct. 16? A—Several days.

Q—What response did he make? A—Well, I made several requests before I got her examined.

Q—That he would or wouldn't? A—He made no response. He wouldn't say anything at all except that she was all right.

Q—Approximately how long after that was it that Barbara was examined? A—Several days. I told him the girl had to be examined—that he could take her to the doctor or I would. I told him Barbara had been drawn into this thing and it would be absolutely necessary to check her condition.

Q—Did you tell him it had to be done that day? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Was it? A—It was not.

Q—Did you speak to him again? A—Yes, sir. He said he would take her right out.

Q—And did he? A—No, sir.

Q—Was she ultimately examined? A—Yes.

Q—And can you recall whether the month of October had wholly elapsed or not? A—Yes, I believe it had.

Q—Do you recall the date of May 27, 1938? A—Yes.

CARROLL'S ARREST

Q—Do you know where Carroll had been that day? A—Thomaston prison.

Q—You knew he was going there? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you have a conversation with him? A—Yes, sir. I followed him right in.

Q—Did you call him into the cell room? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What did you say to him? A—I asked him if he had a gun. He said no, it was in the car. I said to him that Barbara had named him for mistreating her and that he was under arrest.

Q—What did he say to you? A—He turned around a couple of times and then he said, "Sheriff, you don't think I had anything to do with that Littlefield murder, do you?"

IDENTIFIES CARROLL GUN

Carroll's gun was introduced in evidence and identified by Sheriff Francis.

Q—You placed him under arrest on the morals charge and all he said to you was about the "Littlefield murder?" A—Yes, sir.

Sheriff Francis was taken under cross-examination by Defense Attorney Clyde R. Chapman.

Q—Are you acquainted with the reputation Mr. Carroll enjoyed in the community in which he resides for peace and quiet? A—No, sir, not of my own knowledge. I investigated and was given to understand that it was wholly good.

Q—You found everything in good order in the Dr. Littlefield house. A—I did.

Q—Then you went to the Dwyer house? A—I did.

Q—When you left the Dwyer house after your 15-minute examination—you did say it was 15 minutes?—A—I wouldn't say it was only 15 minutes. I wouldn't estimate the time.

LIKE VARRELL'S LIGHTER

Q—Several persons were with you when you picked up, as you say, the cigarette lighter? A—Yes.

Q—Had you ever seen a lighter like that before? A—I believe one of my deputies, Sidney Verrell, had one like it.

Q—Did you ever see Carroll with one like it? A—No, sir.

Q—After you picked it up, did you examine it for fingerprints? A—Yes, sir. We looked it over.

Q—Did you find any? A—No, sir.

Q—What investigators did you put on the case? A—Well, I myself, Mr. Verrell, other members of my staff.

Q—Mr. Carroll was one of the investigators? A—Not after he came under suspicion.

SUSPICIOUS OF CARROLL

Q—When would you say that Mr. Carroll came under suspicion? A—The last day Paul Dwyer was downstairs after he was sentenced.

Q—Prior to that Mr. Carroll took part in the investigation with your other deputies? A—Yes sir.

Q—Why did you consent to their participation and withhold your consent from Mr. Carroll? A—Well, I had heard a number of things that aroused a question in my mind.

Sheriff Francis' testimony brought out that Carroll, nevertheless, continued to investigate more or less unofficially.

"He put himself in," the sheriff said.

Q—How did you get into the Dwyer house when you went there that morning? A—We found the place locked and broke a corner of a window pane and unlocked it and got in that way.

HUNTED FINGERPRINTS

Q—Did you examine the bathroom for fingerprints at that time? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever have it examined for fingerprints? A—Yes, sir. One examination was made by Lieutenant Leon Shephard of the state police.

Q—Referring to Lieutenant Shepard, he never told you whether he found any fingerprints other than those of Dr. Littlefield or not? A—No, sir.

Sheriff Francis was asked whether he found the key to the Dwyer house among the articles taken from Dwyer in New Jersey. He said he did not.

Q—Did you ever find it? A—No.

Q—Did he ever tell you what became of it? A—Not at that time. Later he told me that Carroll took it the night Dr. Littlefield as killed.

ASHES FRESH

Sheriff Francis was questioned by Chapman concerning the little piles of ashes found between the wheel prints in the yard. They were fresh, h esaid.

Q—Any examination to find whether there was blood on the ground under the ashes, sheriff? A—I don't think so.

Q—Never? A—No. I don't think so.

Q—Did you have a talk with Dwyer? A—He was in court. When he was brought out he didn't want to talk.

Q—He didn't at that time tell you any story conflicting with his confession to Chief Shippee? A—No, sir.

Q—Did Dwyer say anything to you afterwards about how he felt? A—He said he dreaded facing his home people.

Q—What was his appearance when he first saw you in New Jersey? A—Well, he was nervous.

Q—Were there other investigators, other than from your office, working on the case, Mr. Sheriff? A—I don't know.

Q—The state police, other than Lt. Shephard? A—I can't say of my own knowledge that there were. I never ran across any of them.

VISITED "DEATH SPOT"

Q—Did you have a conversation with Dwyer the next day? A—Only coming down in the plane. He wouldn't talk about the case or anything else.

Sheriff Francis told of stopping on the way back to South Paris at the spot in New Gloucester where Dwyer in his New Jersey confession said he killed Mrs. Littlefield.

Q—Did you find anything at that spot? A—A banana peeling and one bag.

Q—Did that bear out a statement by Dwyer? A—He had said that they stopped and eaten a banana before he killed Mrs. Littlefield.

Q—Did you have any trouble finding the spot? Was it, in fact, a hard spot to find? A—I can't say that it was. We found it all right.

Q—Did Dwyer make any statement to you at that time? A—No, I can't say that he did. That is in Cumberland County. He talked to Sheriff Burnell.

Carroll Given Serenade by Jail Mate

SOUTH PARIS, Me., Aug. 6 — In ironic contrast to the tragic proceedings of his long court ordeal yesterday former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll enjoyed a serenade for his special benefit given last night by a fellow-prisoner with a gift for crooning and deft hand on the banjo.

Carroll joined the performer, with other prisoners in the cell block. He sat behind the open barred window, smoking a cigarette and calling out "request numbers."

Reporters and wire operators were lured from the adjoining press room to the prison yard and joined lustily in choruses of such well-known favorites as the "Prisoner's Song," "Casey Jones," "Sidewalks of New York," "The Wreck of the Old 97" and impromptu numbers.

Kennedy Aids Blind Girl, Dog

LONDON, Aug. 6 (INS) — Through the efforts of American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, a blind American girl, Hazel Hurst, today was allowed to come ashore with her "seeing eye" dog for the first time in England before sailing aboard the liner American Merchant back to New York.

Miss Hurst, who had refused to leave the ship because the British agricultural ministry insisted her guide dog, "Babe," would have to go into quarantine, took her canine companion for a short walk, then returned to the liner.

Just before sailing, she sent Ambassador Kennedy a telegram which said:

"After all appeals had failed, you have through your personal intervention given me the greatest thing in my life and through me freedom to all the blind."

A.F.L. in War On Labor Board

The Massachusetts Federation of Labor today, under the leadership of their newly elected president, Nicholas P. Morrissey of Hyde Park, embarked on an uncompromising fight to drive the National Labor Relations Board from power.

Keynote of the drive was sounded by William Green, national president of the A. F. of L., who sought and obtained a vote favoring removal by President Roosevelt of Edwin S. Smith and Donald Smith from their positions on the board.

Edwin Smith, former Massachusetts labor commissioner, was branded as a "betrayer" of the people of his state and, with his associate, as the "tools of designing groups."

President Green branded the NLRB as a "CIO agency" and went on to charge that CIO was harboring Communists.

"Endorsement by CIO means the kiss of death for any candidate for public office," Green charged at one point of his speech, at concluding session of the annual convention of the Massachusetts federation at Worcester.

In speaking of the Wagner act, President Green told delegates:

"The law as it is administered is terrific and awful. The board has imbibed the economic philosophy of CIO and has become nothing more than a CIO agency. It is a travesty on justice. Its decisions of craft unions we never can accept."

Two Firms War Over 'Cola' Trade Mark

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (INS)—Suit was on file in the Supreme Court of Queens County today by the Pepsi-Cola Company against the Coca-Cola Company from interfering with the Pepsi-Cola Company, its subsidiaries and licensees throughout the United States.

Simultaneously with the filing of this bill of complaint against the Coca-Cola Company, the Pepsi-Cola Company stated a petition had been filed in the U. S. Patent Office in Washington by the Pepsi-Cola Company attacking the validity of the Coca-Cola trade-mark.

The petition further claims that the names "Coca" and "Cola" are both descriptive names, are public property, and therefore cannot be used exclusively by the Coca-Cola Company.

The bill of complaint alleges that the Pepsi-Cola trade-mark has been in existence and in continuous use for more than 35 years; and that during all that period Pepsi-Cola has been sold side by side in competition with Coco-Cola; and that its rights have never been challenged in the United States by anyone during this entire period.

The bill of complaint further alleges that the Pepsi-Cola Company, its subsidiaries, affiliates and licensees have an investment in excess of $25,000,000; and that in the calendar year has spent in newspaper advertising alone in excess of one million dollars ($1,000,0000).

The Pepsi-Cola Company complains that the Coca-Cola Company seeks to "destroy its business and that of its subsidiaries, affiliates and licensees."

New Deal At Stake in Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 6 (AP)—New Deal leadership in the United States Senate is at stake in today's Kentucky Democratic primary.

Senate majority leader, Alben Barkley, backed by President Roosevelt's personal appeal for his re-nomination, is opposed by Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler, a smiling, two-fisted campaigner.

Defeat of Barkley would see the Democratic party's leadership shift to other shoulders and mark the passing from the Washington scene of a veteran of a quarter-century of representing his State in national affairs.

The outcome of the primary, from the national viewpoint, also involved sanction or setback for President Roosevelt's program.

The opposing candidates have been warned by the Senate campaign expenditures committee that the successful candidate, after passing the November general election test, may face a hearing before he takes his seat in the councils of the nation.

There are approximately 445,000 eligible Democratic voters who may cast ballots in 4310 precincts scattered in 120 counties.

MARKETS BOSTON AMERICAN COMMENT

N. E. Retailers Continue to Do Well

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Retail continues the bright feature of New England trade conditions. Weather conditions have favored it and sales have steadily expanded. Dun & Bradstreet report that stocks have been reduced and merchants are in a position to handle an increased volume of goods for the fall trade.

Larger buyers are said to be placing business more freely and wholesalers face a favorable outlook. Jobbers as a rule are carrying normal supplies.

Manufacturers' inventories in this section are still somewhat heavy, but in most cases increased distribution is correcting this factor.

Of the various industries, shoes appear to be in the best position. Operations are expanding to a new peak, and manufacturers are reported to be obtaining somewhat higher prices.

TECHNICAL GUIDEPOSTS

Traders and investors, wondering whether or not a phase of the rise has begun, do not want to overlook handy technical guideposts. We refer specifically to the highs marking the upper edge of the recent trading range. If the market restored its internal strength during the sidewise movement both the rails and industrials should decisively rise through high closings of July 23 and 25 respectively.

* * *

The theory behind such action is just the reverse of that which prompted advice to place stops under the lows of the trading range. However, instead of having automatic selling protection they will acquire mechanical aid in getting in for a further rise. We would not buy more stocks until the two averages have both closed in new high ground.

STATE ST. NOTEBOOK

After months of just watching our markets the English are now said to be quite bullish . . . Investment trusts there and large private investors are rumored to be taking on stock . . . Their own markets have been doing little and the urge to trade here is heightened . . . The story from the continent is not quite so bullish . . . Profit taking sellers orders have been dribbling in.

Chrysler is still harboring a number of shorts, according to the latest gossip . . . The rubber stocks appear to be a strong position in the event of a further broad upturn . . . The new Briggs plants are already booked to capacity . . . Well, with this bit we shall close for the following two weeks . . . In the meantime let's hope the trading stalemate is definitely broken.

Telephone Chief Notes Upswing

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6 (AP)—Walter Gifford of New York, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, was optimistic about business as he boarded the liner Lurline for a vacation trip to Honolulu with his son, Richard.

"There has been a marked upswing in business all over the nation in the past few weeks, and the outlook is bright," he said.

BILLIONS IN BONDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (INS)—At the close of business July 30, 1938 there were 1,374 bond issues listed on the N. Y. Stock Exchange with an aggregate par value of $49,408,-$56,523 and a market value of $44,-561,109,796. A month earlier there were 1,368 issues listed with a par value of $49,176,722,027 and a market value of $43,756,515,009.

HOURLY

PLAY-BY-PLAY IN THE STOCK MARKET

The stock market held to the rallying side today and leaders moved up on sizeable trades. At their best, prices were up from large fractions to about 2 points higher.

10-11. The market tilted forward the moment trading began. Rails, steels and motors al did well. They were up a dollar or so. Traders hailed the better action of rails as a sign the move was on again. The steels continued to forge ahead as reports of a new lift in operations reached the "street." There were 3,000 shares of big Steel traded at 62. Montgomery made 50 and Atch jumped to 39. Rubber was hoisted to 46⅝ and Celanese kept running and to⅝uched 23¾. Volume, 280,-000 shares.

11-. There was a little week-end profit taking but prices were not badly dented. Other markets followed along with stocks for the most part. Pleasing business news impressed many who had been clinging to the sidelines and brokers reported much new buying.

Business Chiefs Acclaim Rukeyser

Merryle Stanley Rukeyser's suggestion that American industry streamline its financial statements in order to present a better picture of its part in domestic economic life continues to attract widespread approval.

American business, industrial and financial leaders have responded with vigorous acclaim to the sound ideas the economic writer for the Hearst newspapers expounds in his brochure entitled, "Streamlined Financial Statements."

Excerpts from some of the letters Rukeyser has received are as follows:

From C. E. Denney, trustee and president, Erie Railroad Company:

"Acknowledging your letter of the 19th and pamphlet entitled 'Streamlined Financial Statements.'

"There is no question that the employees of a company particularly, and the public in general, are entitled to the facts regarding business. Such information can be placed before employes of some companies through company magazines, but the public can be informed only by advertising or through the columns of commentators on business."

* * *

From H. S. Sutton, executive assistant to the chairman, Consolidated Edison Company of New York:

"Copies of your pamphlet, 'Streamlined Financial Statements,' have been handed me for acknowledgment by several officers of this company.

"You have made a very interesting presentation of a timely subject in present day business management. It is to be hoped that this will stimulate other companies along similar lines.

* * *

From W. A. Patterson, president, United Air Lines:

"I wish to thank you for your thoughtful letter of July 19th enclosing the booklet 'Streamlined Financial Statements.' This is extremely interesting and I believe can be most constructive. We have seen what propaganda destructive to this business can do and how successful it can be, and only by improvement in our own conduct and relations with our employees and stockholders can we overcome this. I hope to derive much benefit from the information contained in this booklet."

TAXES! TAXES! TAXES!

¶ "TAX" comes from the Latin, Tangere, which means to touch. The average man who applauds any tax that touches those of a higher income than himself fails to realize HE is also touched through UNSEEN TAXES.

¶ ONE dollar out of every FIVE that the average man earns goes for taxes directly or indirectly.

¶ On every loaf of bread he buys there are no less than 49 different hidden taxes.

¶ The next time he goes to the corner drug store, whether to buy ice cream or cough medicine, remember the proprietor pays 17 federal taxes, 27 state taxes, 34 local taxes, a total of 78 taxes.

EVERYWHERE THE ALARM HAS BEEN SOUNDED AGAINST THE TREND TOWARD CONFISCATION BY TAXATION. TODAY, BUSINESS, INDUSTRY, EMPLOYMENT AND INDIVIDUAL INITIATIVE ARE THREATENED BY THIS TREND. CONFISCATORY TAXATION IS WIPING OUT BUSINESS PROFITS.

WHEN INDUSTRY SUFFERS FROM BURDENSOME TAXATION THE DEPRESSING RESULTS FALL DIRECTLY UPON THE COMMON PEOPLE.

IF TAXATION IS TO BE FOR THE COMMON WELFARE IT MUST NOT BE DESTRUCTIVE!

HANDWRITING PSYCHOLOGIST,
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN,

Send me your personal analysis of my handwriting.

A large self-addressed stamped envelope (your own writing), must be enclosed.

By HELEN PAYNE

"Just how do you go about analyzing a specimen of handwriting?" A great many people ask this question and it is not easy to answer because no two scripts present exactly the same problem, traits, temperament, or character.

It is safe to say that the most prominent traits shown in a script will "jump out" at you without exhaustive search, because the graphologist is looking for the graphological signs and is not absorbing the contents or thought conveyed in the writing.

First, the principal signs or traits must be found and from them the character structure can be built. For instance, if determination is strongly expressed, then the graphologist has to make sure whether it is obstinacy, unreasoning, headstrong impulse, or whether it is the firmness of intelligence and good judgment.

15 ELEMENTS

There are, however, about 15 elements in any sample of handwriting which, when accurately established, will constitute an "open sesame" to the personality and character of the individual.

The graphologist cannot be too careful in painstakingly weighing all the signs and balancing them one against the other, and of course some allowance must be made for the kind of pen a writer uses, also for the mental state of a person at the time of writing.

Space does not permit a detailed explanation of how handwriting is analyzed, but a truthful compilation of classified knowledge, when properly applied to the natural handwriting of any one, enables the graphologist to determine precisely the intellectual eminence and mental breadth of a person's character and personality.

WHAT YOUR PEN SHOWS

Would you like to improve your personality?

Would you like to know the type of person you should marry?

Would you like to know your greatest "assets or handicaps?"

Would you like to know if you and the boy (or girl) friend are suited for marriage?

Watch for the NEW coupon appearing in tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser which will give additional personal service to readers of the Boston Evening American and the Sunday Advertiser through the analysis of handwriting. You may still have only your handwriting analyzed if you wish, or you may have any of the above questions answered for 10 cents (in coin) each. WATCH FOR THIS NEW COUPON IN TOMORROW'S SUNDAY ADVERTISER.

New Army Diet Is Streamlined

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—A streamlined substitute may soon replace the concentrated food which the Army has used as an emergency ration since the World War.

Officials disclosed today that a special board is considering a combination of highly concentrated foods patented by a military expert on diet, Major Paul Logan of the quartermaster corps.

Major Logan's invention was reported in military circles to promise economy, lesser bulk and weight and more calories than the diet of world war days.

The brown cakes contained in the cans of World War rations were scientifically designed to sustain a fighting man for a day. Those who have tasted the new ration, which smacks of chocolate, rate it as "not bad," but few are eager to make it a steady diet.

Tobin Pledges Work in Parks

Mayor Tobin moved today for a restoration of facilities at Marine Park, South Boston, and North End Pier, after investigation revealed that vandals have damaged property and destroyed lights.

The mayor declared the city would provide the funds necessary for materials and seek from WPA the necessary money for labor.

A survey of conditions at Marine Park showed that planking has been ripped up and wooden benches mutilated, presumably by those in search of firewood. A large section of the roof over the mothers' rest has been ripped away and carted off.

Ann Tuckerman Weds in Maine

By BETTY ALDEN

DARK HARBOR, picturesque little island resort on the rugged coast of Maine will be the romantic scene of an important wedding this afternoon when Anne Mercer Tuckerman changes her name to Mrs. John Endicott Lawrence. Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Tuckerman, of Boston and Dark Harbor, and her bridegroom, the son of James Lawrence, of Groton and the late Marian Peabody Lawrence.

Since Rt. Rev. William Lawrence is a member of the bridegroom's family he is on hand to help perform the ceremony in quaint little Christ Church at Dark Harbor . . . and the fashionable Boston and Gotham guests will greet the newlyweds at a reception at Drummer the Tuckerman seaside estate.

Anne is being married in conventional white crepe gown with a tulle veil and bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley . . . and her expert knowledge of fashion matters, a talent inherited from her mother, has been put to good use in designing effective outfits for her attendants . . . They are wearing cord marquisette gowns, with wreaths of coral and lavender sweet peas in their hair and bouquets of the same delicate shades. Mrs. Stanley Haskins of Syosset, L. I. is matron of honor and the bridesmaids are Mrs. Mary L. Adie and Phyllis Howe of Brookline. Margery MacKenzie, small niece of the bridegroom, is flower girl.

Mrs. Tuckerman is wearing a gown of larkspur blue with wine red accessories and Mrs. Sidney MacKenzie, sister of the bridegroom, will receive in a gown of beige crepe with navy blue hat and slippers. She is the former Dorothy Lawrence, one time president of the Boston Junior League.

James Lawrence, Jr., husband of the former Martina Brandegee, is serving his brother as best man, and the twelve ushers are all New Yorkers, with the exception of John W. Hallowell of Groton, William L. Breese of Washington, and Sidney MacKenzie, brother-in-law of the groom.

Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, cousin of the bridegroom, is officiating at the ceremony with the assistance of Rev. Frederick Kellogg and Rev. C. Leslie Glenn. The bridegroom is a nephew of Rev. C. Endicott Peabody, headmaster of Groton School. His mother was the late Marian Peabody Lawrence. The bride was educated at Foxcroft School and is a member of the Vincent Club. Mr. Lawrence graduated from Harvard in 1931 and from the Law School in 1936 . . . His clubs include the Somerset, Union Boat, Harvard and Groton Hunt.

Speaking of popularity contests we nominate for best sports on the North Shore, Nancy Cochrane, Elise Sortwell, Eddie Wigglesworth and Ted Brown, who volunteered to be spun around by professional roller skaters in the floor show at the marvelous party for the North Shore Boy Scouts at the Casino last evening. They were twisted and twirled in hair-raising spins and landed in such a dizzy whirl they had to sit in the middle of the dance floor till they recovered. All this was very much to the amusement of their friends, but Nancy said it was great fun and she would like to do it every day!

A number of North Shore debutantes are trying out for parts in "The Nutmeg Tree" which Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Buswell will produce August 22d at their little theater at Stillington Hall, Gloucester, just across the road from the famous John Hays Hammond estate. Nancy Cochrane, who has just returned from New York, where she studied the theory of dramatics, is putting her knowledge to practical use in reading the different parts in the play and others who are likely to be in the cast are debutantes Joanna Hoyt, Emily Rice, Leslie Chase and Nancy Bertelsen. Mrs. Fitzwilliam Sargent, one of several Boston socialites who have had a successful career on the professional stage, is interested in the production, together with Marie Stevenson, Lydia Fuller, Tony Ross and Patricia Trenor.

Love Authority Speaks Out on:

Petting--Problem of the Generation

Is Petting A 'Must' For Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage
Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

It's my impression that if boys don't watch out, they're going to have to cope with just this situation.

Let me explain what I mean.

You've a little party or dance where girls have taken some pains to make themselves look as charming as possible. They've freshened up the permanents and brightened their complexions and put on becoming dresses. They are radiant with hopes.

Every girl at such a party secretly hopes that some boy will especially admire her. If one does, she's sure so she feels that she's a success. If three do, she's in seventh heaven. And if, before the evening is over, the boy wants to kiss her pretty, partner, it's not very likely that she will object. On the contrary, the spontaneous way to make a decent love to her, if he's a nice boy, is to kiss her.

But many a girl is forced by the girl's attitude—it's as the best way of telling her that he finds her pretty and sweet and nice. And she doesn't grant the privilege unless she herself likes the boy and trusts him. In other words the matter is up to the girls here.

But there's another way of looking at this matter of petting, and it's this view that's causing resentment among a good many girls. It's the view held by hard-boiled females who feel that they're the dictators of whatever social life they condescend to lead. Don't they choose the girl they take out in the evening and doesn't she have to conform closely to their specifications on looks, dress and manner? Don't they themselves, without reference to any possible choice of hers, decide on the kind of entertainment they offer her? Don't they buy the movie tickets, pay for meals and taxi fares?

It's the girl's part, then, to argue to fall in line and do whatever may be suggested to her.

And if the needy host happens to be a fine petting but girl guests are most assert with good grace.

Her expenses have been paid, haven't they? She has had a competent escort, hasn't she? Well now it's her turn, according to the masculine types. She must be she has no choice. Otherwise she will be roundly hated. No, but this escort nor any other of the same type will take her out again.

If she belongs to a group or continually where the notion prevails that a girl must either submit to petting or spend lonely evenings. That's a state of affairs calculated to vex her.

For I am told that gradually girls who could make so effective a protest are coming to the conclusion that it is not worth while to earn either the hope of joyfully welcomed dates or good standing. Let us hope they will succeed.

It isn't fair to call these girls prudes. They aren't. They have plenty of the normal warm human emotions. They're not to be taken for granted. They think nothing of petting and petting and long as you're choosing whom, how and when it shall be done. But they object to petting as a social obligation. They're the best judges of their own feelings and can be counted on to know when they are expressions of love and when they are merely lust.

If you were a lonely boy in search of a petting partner would you hope to find one whose control many months, some times, who had retained the power of independent choice?

Or would you prefer to make love to an emotional dummy?

It's too much of a job to order a tall glassful of it . . . but you definitely have to be in the know to taste it.

There's a brand new powdered buttermilk bath which soothes your body and relaxes you, you can believe me, you were on the point of some dreadful action or other only minutes before you stepped into the tub.

I don't care what you've been through—three hours' sitting on top of another in the office, or chasing entanglements from the heat and Cupid, or a three day weekend spent in the city (or some silly thing you said over the phone that started a whole train of unfortunate misunderstandings . . .

Take time out, start a hot tub going, pick up a substantial measure of pure white buttermilk bath powder, and put a generous amount of the buttermilk bath powder.

Then sweat it around with your fingers to help the magic carpet of buttermilk and oil . . . then, into the body temperature water to relax and cream your face and shoulders . . .

You've been ready for all the Executives of late . . . and a holiday with your husband and the city of your friends . . .

To learn the name of this soothing, body beautifying buttermilk bath luxury (a big supply is moderately priced) phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Massaging Aids Shape of Mouth

Here's a new little massage movement that will improve the shape of the mouth.

Apply a massage cream. Place the tips of your fingers at the corner of the upper lip, thumb at the end, and rub lightly on the chin. Hold the fingers in the same position and slide up the face with thumb and fingers following the jaw line to the ear. Repeat this movement with the lower lip.

You and Your Vacation Plans

SOME DO'S AND DON'TS FOR TRAIN TRAVELERS

Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Don't monopolize an entire seat when you see that other passengers are looking for seats. If you wait until you HAVE to move you may not draw any agreeable seat-mate!

Don't put your feet on a seat cushion.

Don't monopolize with your group) the platform of an observation car or the radio in a lounge or club car, or the mirror in the dressing room.

Have a considerate regard for other people's nostrils. Don't juice a lunch-box with odoriferous foods; don't eat bananas or juicy fruits in day coaches; and don't use heavy perfumes when you are traveling.

Don't smoke at times or in places when you are not supposed to. When you have finished smoking, press your cigarette or cigar; don't leave it smoldering. And in the dining car use an ash tray, not your plate or saucer, for the ashes.

Don't greedily turn a seat over and place your belongings on it. And when you make reservations make them of the proper class, i. e., stateroom.

CHILDREN ON TRAINS

We cannot expect children when they are traveling, to remain comfortably quiet in their seats . . . to be entertained for long just "looking out of the window. We should not expect them to abide by adult train behavior; but, on the other hand, they should not be allowed to be noisy or to dash boisterously up and down the train aisle. To keep them amused and contented, plan to provide them with a book (most happily a book with pictures), or a simple toy or game, or an engrossing puzzle.

Enjoy Native Tomatoes Right Now

By MARTHA LEE

From the standpoint of the home maker cook what food could be more welcome than the luscious, juicy tomato? It brings a dozen possibilities for any meal.

If she wants a beginner," tomato juice cocktail is always refreshing. Hot soup, generally not for the month of August, a cream or as cold jellied tomato consomme. Here's one up on that one:

JELLIED TOMATO CONSOMME

Use equal parts of canned consomme and either fresh or canned tomato juice. Allow 1 tablespoon of gelatin for each pint of liquid. Dissolve gelatin in a small amount of tomato juice and add to a cup heated consomme. Combine with remaining liquid when gelatine has dissolved. Then season to suit the taste with cayenne, salt, pepper, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, celery salt, or a bit of onion juice. Pour into serving cups to chill or set. If desired, garnish and cut in cubes to serve. Garnish with lemon or chopped parsley.

• • •

For the main course tomatoes may be baked, broiled or stuffed, stewed or scalloped, fried or fried. And as for sauces for the meat or fish for lovers of the tart or tangy dish, it was tomato sauce that tempted the first cannibal to taste the one apple of his account to date.

For salad the tomato is the vegetable supreme. It is cool, fine-textured and rare.

FRESH TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL

Such an appetizer captures the flavor of the first luscious red slices and is especially popular with many. For fresh tomato cocktail select very red and very ripe tomatoes. Wash and chop and force through a fine sieve to extract the juice. To 2 cups the juice a little more, add allow slices of raw onion to stand in the juice until the flavors are blended; and season to taste with freshly squeezed lemon juice and a dash of horseradish or tabasco sauce.

• • •

If the family will tell you about your friend tomatoes try to dress in the juices by dipping the slices in beaten egg, then fine bread crumbs before frying. Slightly underripe tomatoes are most easily handled of course.

For sliced eye appeal remember to choose tomatoes with a deep, red color. Be sure to postpone adding the tart French dressing until the last minute if you don't want the tomatoes to shrivel and weep. The acid and salt of the dressing draws the juice from the tomato if the salad stands very long before serving.

When perhaps you'll want to serve that tomato flavor with some other of cooking. If so why not try Creole Chicken? It's something to crow about.

CREOLE CHICKEN

- 1 fowl, cleaned
- flour seasoned well and red pepper
- fat
- 1 cup uncooked rice
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups chopped tomatoes
- 1 cup water
- 1 large onion, chopped
- 1 cup cooked chopped green pepper
- 1 cup fresh mushrooms, sliced

Water

Clean and disjoint chicken. Roll in seasoned flour. Brown. Remove chicken to roasting pan, the bottom of which has been covered with rice, salt, pepper, tomatoes and cold water blended together. Do not cover. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) approximately 1 hour. More water can be added if necessary. Meantime sauté onion and green pepper and mushrooms in butter. Add to chicken and bake 30 minutes longer.

NOTE. If you prefer to use tomato juice to replace the fresh tomatoes, use 3½ cups. In the event that the flavor of tomatoes does not appeal, the dish is still excellent when prepared with plain water using 3 cups.

"No! No, sir, I mean the men of the [illegible] me to commit suicide! No! No! NO!"

So it went. Allison faced a hostile audience [illegible] with a pale, grim smile and resolve. [illegible] Then the [illegible] would [illegible] with a sneer of [illegible] the witness who [illegible] the Prosecutor in private. Dave [illegible] Charlie Wilson [illegible] young Mr. Allison, the young man demanded of Allison:

"What's he got [illegible] You have a squad of police behind you. [illegible] support our witnesses. We [illegible] Where are [illegible] We [illegible]

ALLISON MAKES PLEA

"You're here, anyway," answered Allison, "and now we know [illegible] there. The next [illegible] and [illegible] what's happening in Warren, on the [illegible] your head in front of you. The same thing may happen to anyone of us!

"And it may happen to anyone who tries to [illegible] Jordan, over [illegible] at the [illegible] he was drawn in by questioning.

"Oh, you mean the Lawyer?" "You did well to [illegible] that [illegible] I heard about that, but you [illegible] a truck and [illegible] your life. "You can't [illegible] This [illegible] gamble can't [illegible] But I can. If I can get evidence of every three made of every piece of [illegible] with a complete description of those who did it. You can do that for me, for yourself, for the city.

"What Mr. Tuttle [illegible] paper and signed? 'No us bucks. No dice'. Right, give."

And the throng around him nodded emphatic approval as they stared with admiration at their leader challenging the power of a Special Prosecutor in his own office.

But from the middle of them Pop, unbroken by the beating he sustained in the garage skirmish, forced a way through to the front, pushing even Denny aside to flay them.

"You're wasting your time on this gas trunk gang, Mr. Allison. They can't see beyond the noses of their trucks. They're all kings, every one of them and if they have to fight they'll fight among themselves like a bunch of [illegible] you treat the first don't hesitate to [illegible]

"Don't [illegible] Allison, as [illegible] and backed away [illegible] as a Pole, but [illegible] Special Prosecutor [illegible] was [illegible] [illegible] power and began to [illegible] [illegible]

I don't know [illegible] what you [illegible] and [illegible] We all [illegible] I guess [illegible] you [illegible] and [illegible] can't be bluffed and [illegible] like [illegible] him [illegible] [illegible] Allison [illegible]

"Are you going to [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] you where [illegible] [illegible] in what and [illegible] he says.

"But [illegible] this way. You [illegible] like a man that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Where you [illegible] me [illegible] you know it. I'm not afraid of him and I'm willing to take a chance on it. I know you're not afraid to take a chance.

"Are ANY OF YOU brave enough to take another chance? One more chance and put your chips on me?"

TRUCKMEN COOPERATE

There was the [illegible] stir of voices and the murmur of the men [illegible] through the ranks of truckmen facing him. They leaned at one another in private but the heads inclined in their [illegible] negatives. And Denny looked [illegible] BUT NOT FOR LONG. He thrust out a long arm toward the Prosecutor and said, [illegible] as their palms clapped:

"You win. Now what do you want to know?"

Everything you know [illegible] as the Prosecutor pressing the [illegible] advantage, but first – who beat up Charlie?"

Shaking his head as though he could not understand his own acquiescence Denny dropped a hand on the drooped shoulders of the terrified truckman to the chair and said:

Go ahead, Charlie, shoot the works."

"All right, Denny if you say so," stammered the broken man. "It was Gus and if you want to get him go to the [illegible]

The [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] as the testimony came and Allison nodding gratefully, whispered to Denny.

Well take care of him and thank you. Next time I need you I'll be more [illegible] But if you [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

As Victims See It!

The Editor Says:

A country "left-wing" committee has examined the evidence against Leon Trotsky and other old Bolsheviks and now finds that the evidence was FALSE.

The executed victims of that purge in other words, were killed for crimes they were not committed but were INVENTED by Soviet justice.

Moreover it is reported thousands of obscure and innocent persons in Moscow trade organizations have been liquidated on equally baseless charges.

So one of our party stands true. THE RED FLAG OF COMMUNISM HAS BECOME THE BLACK FLAG OF POLITICAL MASSACRE IN THE "WORKERS' FATHERLAND."

BOSTON HOSPITALITY will be at its brightest and best Monday, when courageous young Douglas Corrigan comes to visit us.

The New York reception to the Atlantic-conquering hero sets a high mark to shoot at, but we shall aim high nonetheless.

Here Non-Stop will find a city intensely interested in having participated in what [illegible] is original but we are the nearest American city to Europe. When scheduled flights to and from Europe begin, we expect to be the North American terminal.

In fact we hope our welcome will be such that our guest will forget all the other cities he has intended to see and decide to remain and do it permanently.

HILL-BILLIES GO HARVARD! Or possibly their model is Oxford. Anyway, according to a National Parks Service report, "mountain speech is changing rapidly and being brought more and more to conform to the speech of the lowlands."

To persons who regard the Hill Billy pronunciation as the "pure English" of Shakespeare and the Elizabethan era, this will be disturbing news.

But it is certainly not surprising news. The constantly increasing circulation of newspapers, radio broadcasting and modern transportation have brought Twentieth Century progress and manners into every community, even the most remote.

Consequently you are as likely to hear English spoken "the Harvard way" in the tiniest Berkshire hamlet as in Tremont Street, Boston, or Times Square, New York.

Provincialism, which once inspired so many vaudeville jokes, is becoming as obsolete as the hoop-skirt.

VERMONT IS WISE. We refer to the Green Mountain State's ruling that couples seeking to avoid the marriage laws of their own communities will have to go elsewhere. Vermont wants neither them nor their money.

It is impossible to estimate the harm that has been done by ethics and towns which make a specialty of "speedy" and "easy" marriages. But it is considerable.

The large number of "Gretna Green" unions that terminate in our Massachusetts divorce courts provides abundant and convincing proof of that sorrowful fact.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6

PLENTY more real scalps will dangle from congressional skirmishes this year than the scalps of a couple of senators and congressmen.

If that were all, the country might survive the success or defeat of any or all of them. Posturing are of little long-run consequence.

But the bulwarks of the American election system are under attack, perhaps for the years ahead.

Although [illegible] of all these sordid goings-on will fill our front pages right along, this is the primary evil.

Attempts to free the voting from the manipulations of the bosses and the machines the primary has become an instrument for the enslavement of people through the [illegible] of public money in Washington bureaucracy.

The plain lesson of the Texas campaign, which is [illegible] a new all-time low in the political history of America, is that the direct primary, far from freeing the electorate, has made it more helpless than the old convention system, of machine domination.

• • •

IN EVERY state and many congressional district where the people have voted against the expressed or implied wishes of the Washington bureaucrats, having the handing of Federal funds the heartening spectacle is presented of the triumph of free government over a new sort of machine politics.

There have been a number of such splendid instances as in Iowa, Indiana and Texas. But the perfect free government inherent in a combination of the direct primary in which the voters en masse select the candidates and laying expenditures of public moneys pointed at the polls is the great moment to influence election results stands out in bold relief.

• • •

NO SUCH use of Federal money as has become common place in recent years was dreamed of when the direct primary was set up after the Civil War as the successor first of the nominating caucus system and later of the convention system which followed it.

The primary never wholly successful or perfectly workable is in great danger today. Continued use of money to influence nominations and elections to the end will result in [illegible].

• • •

TODAY under the better primary system Senator James P. Pope candidate for renomination in the Idaho Democratic primaries is being aided by a flood of money for all kinds of projects being poured out from Washington.

The releases of this money are invariably routed through him. The New Deal candidate is given all the credit. The result is that Pope will probably snow under his opponent, Representative Worth Clark the anti-New Deal contender, on August 9.

This is but a typical example. How the new system works in Kentucky has become a national scandal. The Senate has had to set up a committee, employing secret spies to keep corruption out of the primaries, originally designed to free the people from corruption.

Facts Get Strikes For Tom Dewey

By DAMON RUNYON

JUST now District Attorney Tom Dewey gets those underworld hot-s to chirping so lustily in his warfare against the rackets in New York city is something that greatly mystifies many folks. A chirper in underworld parlance, is an informer.

Of course, one reason may be that the underworlders know that Tom Dewey has two strikes on them the minute they face his arrest in that any politician Tom Dewey might have had will no longer help them but [illegible] the opposite power.

The officers given Tom Dewey's immunity from political interference might have indicated some amount of dumping by a lot of old-fashioned bolting voters. And Tom Dewey does not [illegible]

We have heard talk that he [illegible] for fighting office [illegible] the prisoner and for the sake [illegible] sprung by [illegible] brave of his [illegible] men a pass [illegible] but not good for the next [illegible] sam not nothing about bat[illegible]ting. This news [illegible] to disappoint many of our New York [illegible] readers who know some of the lads who have gone through Tom Dewey's hands.

Damon Runyon

It [illegible] Tom Dewey fast [illegible] the one he uses to put over the [illegible] strike is the fact that he is always loaded with plenty of facts and figures with which he confronts the underworld fellow convicting him right off the bat that his name is mud at. That causing him to start chirping like a little [illegible] robin redbreast.

It is apparent from what we read about the treatment of Dixie Davis in the Jimmy Hines case that Tom Dewey also employs a little of the old of kindness on his customers at times.

It is reported in the public prints that Dixie Davis a gay lad who is expected to chirp until the cows come home at the Jimmy Hines trial was permitted when a prisoner to call on a lady.

Well now Dixie Davis is a married man and we rather anticipate some later discussion by Mrs. Dixie Davis as to why a married man and the father of children should be permitted to call on a lady prisoner.

We again Tom Dewey now that some long-memoried guys are [illegible] the [illegible] it in 1944 you'll probably be running for President of the United States though we [illegible] and [illegible] Tom Dewey and [illegible] from what we know about [illegible] Tom Dewey is a natural one. He [illegible] experience [illegible] Republican [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Listen, World!

by Elsie Robinson

DEAR MR. AMERICAN MERCHANT: We've been talking together considerable, over the years, haven't we—particularly during the period of the Great Lamentation. And growing right neighborly while we did so. Some of my more radical friends, of course, don't admire you so much. I might even like to see you shot at sunrise. But, personally, I think you're great guys and I'm firmly convinced we'll all have a tough time if you folded. The dear old days when we swapped wampum for buffalo jerkie may look lovely on paper, but when it comes to reality give me a nice, air-cooled modern mart every time.

Elsie Robinson

So, I repeat, you have my note. And yet . . . sometimes I wonder if you aren't making things a little harder for yourselves—and the rest of us—than need be.

For instance—take a look at the letter I've just received from a young San Franciscan:

Last week I sought work from the Personnel Manager of a prominent business concern which employs thousands of men all over the country. I wasn't particularly surprised when he said he didn't need me but I was frankly amazed at his pessimistic reply to my query where I might find employment. 'Young man,' he said, 'I don't believe there's a position to be had in this city. Business is terrible.'

Much later in my own necessity I found him I dare not accept that attitude or I'd never get a job, and I wanted to come back in a week to tell him where I was working. I am proud to state that within four days I found three temporary jobs and just yesterday secured a permanent position in an insurance company. Tomorrow I'm going back to that Manager's office and make quite sure of it.

THERE'S one story, Mr. Merchant. Here's another, also true, concerning a friend of mine, likewise a writer. The beginning of the depression found him on his mountain ranch recuperating from a long illness.

To make things worse his mountain neighbors were in a desperate plight. Depression meant anxiety to him but to them it would probably mean actual starvation. So my friend thought things over.

AND THE NEXT DAY HE HIRED SIX MEN TO BUILD A NEW FENCE LINE.

That was six years ago. Since that time my friend has sunk every dollar he has earned, outside his bare necessities, into the lives and fortunes of his hard-hit neighbors. He was determined that the depression shouldn't get him down—that he'd not lose courage and faith as it was going to so many of his friends. He never came out of it busted. But if he saved his fighting mettle.

He's had a swell time. While others have been wrapped in crepe and these years, he's had the joy and thrill of a perpetual adventure.

Now THAT'S what I call good business. And it seems to me that if I had any kind of a job—even if I couldn't make the goods off my counter—I'd do a little trading in human values. I'd try to keep the grin on my face.

Yours for the duration,

ELSIE

DIARY OF A COLYUMIST'S PUP. Well, this about tops it all. Just as I was getting used to Ina Ports's form along comes a note from Thin Brun and Dee put me into a box and it seems I traveled for years. But here I am in the place they call Hollywood. We are in a place called the Garden of Allah, but I don't think it's going to be much fun because when I dived into the swimming pool some man they called Farrell told the Queen she would have to get me out—and quick. "I don't see," says the Queen, quick-like, "why you people don't have swimming pools for dogs, too—after all they're human and have feelings—in hot weather like this.

WEDNESDAY: It seems they went to the home of a man named Gregory Ratoff who played tunes on the music box by a fellow named Jascha Heifetz and told stories about himself, especially one in which he insisted was proof you have to have luck to get your breaks, while they were drinking vodka. The way I get it he was in a play called "Wonder Boy" in which he was loud and annoying except for one second where he gets sentimental. That night he got a telephone call that a J. J. McCarthy wanted to see him and he went to see him and J. J. McCarthy said, "You are a wonderful actor. You have great emotion and when you stroked that boy's head and spoke softly, I knew you were one of the most wonderful actors in America, so I am getting you a test for Fox." The next afternoon they made him cut out that sentimental hunkie crap. Ratoff says if J. J. McCarthy hadn't caught him that first night he would never have got the test emotional he could be and there would be no test for Fox and now he would not be a wonderful actor or director and also would not have the chance to argue with Darryl Zanuck.

THURSDAY: Droop-Chin was out to a place they call Mario and he sat with some men at a big table and they turned a cage which had one in to see who would pay the check and Clark Gable, who was in tatters and needed a shave, lost.

FRIDAY: "I think," says the Queen, "you are silly the way you are carrying on here." And I says, "How am I carrying on?" And she says: "Loafing in studios every day and going to night clubs and parties every night and never spending more than 15 minutes home or going out alone with me. I thought this was to be your vacation." And he growls: "Vacation! That's good, that is! What kind of vacation is it when I have to write every day over a column?" And the Queen says: "You ought to get out in this wonderful sunshine and take long drives into the beautiful mountains or to the lovely seashore." And he says: "If I were a supervisor or had a soft job like Zanuck or Louis B. Mayer or Jack Warner or people like that I would sit out in the sun and take long drives but I am a slave to my newspapers, so please get out into that sun and let me sit here at my typewriter." The Queen giggles and murmers: "Poor suffering lamb." And he gives her a growl—so she goes out in the sun with sang asses and I go with her.

The T.V.A. Probe

by Hugh S. Johnson

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—I wrote a column expressing the hope that the T. V. A. investigation would not be a whitewashing stunt and a suggestion that it had started out that way. That drew so many letters of protest that in the interest of fairness I quote the following as an excellent example of the lot:

General Johnson

"As an old reader of your column may I express a criticism of what you have said about the T. V. A. probe?

"As you also say, it is too complicated a matter to understand on a superficial statement. However to one who has sat in the court room and watched the slow unfolding of testimony day by day, has seen the fairness, courtesy and patience with which Dr. A. F. Morgan and other witnesses have been treated, and realized the deft, determined penetration of the cross-examination of all witnesses by Francis Biddle, I think your conclusion that 'the counsel is weakly supporting the T. V. A. counsel and bulldozing the only witnesses who know the truth, and restricting if not suppressing the evidence' is a distinctly prejudiced and very misleading statement, quite unlike what we count on from you.

"There are more ways than one to skin a cat; we used to say, and I cannot help feeling that the blustery grandstand playing of counsel who seems to make the headlines would not secure the exact facts so well as what we are seeing here in Knoxville. Between Mr. Biddle and Mr. Wherry of New Jersey the 'truth of the testimony is to be in the quarry, laid apart and exposed to view.' This is not the 'whitewashing' you are worried about, General. Better come and look into this matter yourself.

THERE JUST isn't any more important subject than T. V. A. or one harder for an editor to study or a layman to understand. I am frankly fearful of the whole deal. I know that there are some planners in Washington who sincerely and earnestly believe that our system of political and national governments is wrong.

They say that the state boundaries are artificial and that the country should be redistricted into seven economic provinces responsible to the national government. They can put up an excellent theoretical argument for that point of view.

I don't mean to imply that any of them expects to live to see any such revolutionary change but something of this thought has colored several pieces of national legislation, enacted or proposed [illegible]

Lombard and Powell Cast for New Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—Carole Lombard and Bill Powell together again—but don't get excited—it's just for the screen.

David Myron Selznick is to think of [illegible] [illegible] Carole and Bill for the first time [illegible] Mrs. Marion Gallery [illegible] The second Ernst Lubitsch production [illegible] Paramount [illegible] Of course [illegible] Lubitsch will [illegible] The [illegible] Around [illegible] Dorothy Hess as previously announced, as his first with the Carole and Bill opus to follow.

Louella O. Parsons

This should end all rumors that Bill has [illegible] [illegible] career. He goes to the hospital for a minor operation September 1 but the last time I saw him when he dined with us at Marion's ranch before I left the coast, he looked like the proverbial million dollars. I know nothing could make Bill happier than having another picture with Carole and she feels the same way about him he [illegible] [illegible] of friends since their separation. He still has "Return of the Thin Man" to make as the last of his M-G-M contract and whether this or the picture with Carole will be made first is still in the air.

Here's some more luck of the Irish: If wrong way Corrigan was the [illegible] the happiest girl in Hollywood right now is 17 year-old Nancy Kelly who has just been [illegible] by Darryl Zanuck for the feminine lead with Tyrone Power and Henry Fonda in "Jesse James."

Yes, I thought Arleen Whelan was set for the part, but now I'm told she was never definitely cast and that another good role will be given her.

What a break it was for Nancy when the studio became so excited over her work in "Submarine Patrol" that special tests were made and signaled to Darryl in New York. She's the youngster, you know, who made such a hit on the stage with Gertrude Lawrence in "Susan and God," and "Jesse James" will be her second picture—which is certainly getting off to a flying start.

Everything's happening at once! Bill Gargan, who went through a siege of ill luck before he took off 25 pounds and began to look like a juvenile again, First Bill clicked in a big way with Bob Taylor in "The Crowd Roars." And now to cap the climax, his pal and I-must-crony Leslie Howard has sent for him to come to London for Alexs Mrs. Jones, which Leslie will act and produce.

Leslie is also the author of the yarn having whipped it up, with Bill's aid, while he was here two years ago. But since it's a story about an American reporter, why don't the boys change that title? It sounds like an installment of "The Jones Family" and a lukewarm one at that.

• • •

Some lucky soul will be $50,000 richer and five thousand smart girls and boys will share in the total quarter of a million dollar prize money which will be distributed by producers and exhibitors in the tremendous drive to make this motion pictures' greatest year. The prizes will be won by those giving the best answers to the movie quizzes to be held in the theaters.

Each year has had its greater movie season, but this time all branches have joined to make this a superlative effort to further the film-going habit. And a first rate one it is bringing untold happiness to many, many millions.

SNAPSHOT COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Douglas Corrigan, publ. hero No. 1, tucked in his town's [illegible] 9:40 while all New York waited. Here [illegible] all invitations [illegible] he must have a good night's rest. Five Flynn [illegible] no, who had the cold in [illegible] [illegible] plans. But their close friends know Errol and Lili Damita have reached an agreement to go their own ways even if there's no immediate divorce in the offing. Glenda Farrell back at work after collapsing from the heat. Walter Huston putting his John Hancock on a Maxwell Anderson contract for "Knickerbocker Holiday" and there's a hot rumor they're trying to get Ann Sothern for the [illegible] well, I'm off to Saratoga and hope to have lots of gossip to report on my return to New York Monday. That's all for today, see you Monday.

Valentino Film For the Drive-In

"Son of the Sheik," last picture ever filmed by the late Rudolph Valentino, comes to the Drive-In Theater screen next Wednesday. It will be shown there through Saturday.

The romantic Italian screen star appeared in two widely divergent characterizations in "Son of the Sheik," as the stern, middle-aged Englishman who became head of a great Bedouin tribe as well as Ahmed, his handsome, adventurous, strong-willed son.

Hay Will Adapt London Play

Ian Hay, whose comedy "The Housemaster," which was retitled "Bachelor Born" for New York theater-goers, has equalled its British success, has been selected to adapt the London production of "On Borrowed Time."

Hay will leave London for New York in the near future to see the Broadway production and to view his own comedy once more.

Armstrong Expected To Beat Ambers | Regatta Opens In the Basin

By JACK CONWAY

HENRY ARMSTRONG will become a triple world boxing champion by 11 o'clock next Wednesday night, according to persons who take cauliflower with each of their three meals. That is the evening on which Eddie Mead's flash from California will meet Lou Ambers, who is the current world's lightweight champion.

Mr. Boston

So many people believe Armstrong will win that Mike Jacobs' Twentieth Century box office is suffering from a severe chill despite the heat wave. Mike's publicity force has been unable to sell the idea that Ambers may even win the decision, let alone knock Armstrong out.

If Armstrong was good enough to win the world's welterweight championship from Barney Ross, the fans argue he certainly should have enough class to win the lightweight title.

I look for Ambers, the lightweight, to give Armstrong more opposition than did Ross, the welterweight.

Ambers is only 25 years of age, and still has speed in his legs and the desire to go on to greater ring triumphs.

When Ross fought Armstrong he was 29 years old, with his boxing career very much behind him. Barney had married into wealth and no longer possessed the urge to knock out his opponents.

At the end of the first round it was apparent Ross was beaten. He couldn't hold off Armstrong's rush, and when he hit the colored sensation flush on the chin with his best Sunday punch Henry kept piling in at him.

If Ambers could land a haymaker against a top fighter, he would have a good chance to shake up Armstrong. The latter is easy to hit when coming in, but to date Ambers has not displayed any signs of a puncher. Lou's assets have been speed and exceptional boxing ability.

Armstrong will find it more difficult to hit Ambers than he did Ross. Lou won't back against the ropes and remain there. He will be bobbing around the ring, which will make it necessary for Armstrong to keep going on high every second he is in the ring if he is to win.

If Armstrong wins he will become world's featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion. Henry, of course, will never again defend his featherweight title. He cannot make 126 pounds and still be strong. The lightweight and welterweight titles should be enough to keep Armstrong satisfied.

IT IS LIKELY that Al McCoy will clash with Tom Osborne in a Montreal ring in the late fall or early summer. Osborne will be remembered as the Canadian amateur heavyweight who proved such a sensation in his Boston appearances. As an amateur Osborne was the best heavyweight in the ranks of the simon pures. He went on to win the amateur heavyweight championship of the British empire.

Since turning professional Osborne has been knocking out his ring rivals in a jiffy. That was a habit Tom got when boxing as an amateur.

McCoy got back into a winning stride in Montreal the other night when he outscored Harry Thomas of Chicago. McCoy displayed his former speed against Thomas, while his left hand worked perfectly, according to Bill Brennan. McCoy has a good left jab and a solid left hook. These two punches should be sufficient to hek the average run of heavyweights.

The McCoy-Osborne bout will prove a natural in Montreal, where both boxers are big favorites. It will probably set a new figure for attendance and receipts in the Canadian city.

THE REGATTA in the Charles River Basin this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon should furnish some brilliant competition and attract thousands of people. There will be 15 of the 21 world's record holders in action, which gives you some idea of the high type of competition that will be offered.

The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser were among the leaders in helping to increase interest in outboard motor races. In 1936 and 1937 these newspapers conducted regattas in the Charles River Basin similar to the one that will be held this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon.

The public gets thrills and spills at these stirring races. People are very much boat-minded, and speed boats make a particular appeal to them. Americans crave the most intensified action.

* * *

STEVE CASEY sails for Ireland today, where he will wrestle Dan O'Mahony in Dublin on either August 15 or August 22, with the world's heavyweight championship at stake . . . Danno is already on the high seas bound for his homeland.

Tony Shucco is expected to engage in more bouts in Ireland as a result of his victory over Dan Lydon in Dublin . . . Ben Foord, South African heavyweight, refused a London offer for a match with Shucco . . . Gabby Hartnett Day at National League Park tomorrow will attract a big gathering . . . A double-header makes the program especially attractive . . . The Cubs have been displaying better form since Hartnett took charge of the club.

300 Outboard Aces Seek Basin Marks In 2-Day Regatta

The fourth annual Boston motor boat regatta to be contested today and tomorrow on the Charles River course has attracted an entry list of more than 300 drivers and nearly that number of individual speed boats.

The day before was given up by contestants to the tuning of the racing craft and the overhauling of engines and intensive practise on the turning of the course buoys—a point expected to determine many winners in the champion ships.

The Boston course is said by experts to be the finest in the country for spectators.

The entire course may be seen from any point on the Charles River basin from the Charles street bridge to Massachusetts avenue bridge and on both sides of the river between the bridges.

COOPER DANGEROUS

Contesting against experts from over the country less drivers and less boats are expected to be repeated winners.

In the 225 cubic inch class the expert is the veteran George F. Schrafft, Jr., of Newton racing for the first time in the division he expects to furnish real competition to the older drivers as he turns up this season a record. Real competition will be furnished by Dr. Cooper of New York, last year winner of the event and holder of the world's record.

Another competitor who may upset things is Hugh Gargrave who drove George Cooper's Gray Goose to a world's straightaway record last spring and who is seeking new honors with the boat.

FERGUSON FLYING

A new class this year in which there are no restrictions as to piston displacement or weight limitations has a favorite in Clinton Ferguson, who has tried out a new model boat.

Reports of 69 miles an hour have been whispered to the right ones.

Today's program, starting at 1.40 with a five-mile race starting every 20 minutes, will continue until 6 o'clock and will be for "A" class, midget class, C class and X class outboards.

Tomorrow's program will start at 1.2 with races for B class, F class, "X" class and 225 cubic inch and a special "X" class race.

Walter J. McInnis commodore, Douglas Hawkins vice commodore, Carl O. Nelson rear commodore, Edward G. Moulton, treasurer, and Howard S. Gunn secretary are the racing committee.

Stanley W. Ferguson, State street, of the Boston Motor Boat Club is in charge of the entries. Headquarters are at Hotel Lincolnshire Back Bay.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6 (AP)—Fred Johnson, 38-year-old rookie from Toledo, gained his initial American League win today as the Browns thumped the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 2.

If some guys want to climb aboard Armstrong at 13 or 12 to 5, you'd better hurry 'cause those odds are going to shorten.

Why Pass Up Ainsmith?

Although they were beaten in the finals by Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Oakley, and Loretta Dee, Tedesco, Marie Bourneuf, Commonwealth, and Mae Kennedy, Charles River, surprised everyone, and probably themselves, by their remarkable play in the Essex Four-Ball Invitation . . . Tommy Murphy, a former Woodland caddy, who is now sports editor of the Waltham News-Tribune, is doing his bit to promote golf among the juniors with his tri-community 36 hole championships, the second of which was held recently at Albemarle . . . The Bees are confident that they'll take the odd game from the Cubs . . . If you wish to be sure of a seat in the shade for tomorrow's double header, don't lose any time getting in touch with National League Field. It'll be "Hartnett Day," and there'll be a shortage of reserved seats . . I have never been able to understand why both the National and American league continue to put "thumbs down" on Eddie Ainsmith, the old Washington catcher. He has served a long and faithful apprenticeship in the Southern Association and International League but to no avail. When they pass up Ainsmith and give the nod to Parkers, Ballefantes, Kolls, Rommels and Rues, there must be a slap happy streak among the powers that be. Tommy Connelly's alibi for not bringing Eddie up was that he umpired from the inside and wore a National League umpire's chest protector." He lost track of the fact that Ainsmith never put an umpire in the middle while he was catching by turning around to protest a decision. It looks as if we'll have to take Eddie's case up with Bob Quinn, the old action kid himself . . . Now that he has ben shut out in a Winchester Father and Son tournament, Jim Reidy, Pakachoag Hills, will probably listen to reason and withdraw from competition. For years, Jim has been playing 36 holes in two days at Winchester. At its best, and it never is at its best during Father and Son tournaments, Winchester is a man killer. The Reidy boys have been trying to get their father to sit back and live on his laurels for two or three years, but just so long as he finished "in the money," Jim has insisted upon carrying on . . . Eugene "Skip" Wogan, another Roxbury boy, other than Arthur Goode, who has made good, is creating a novel score board for the United States and British International matches at Essex in September.

Fund Aces Invited To Hershey 4-Ball

By BILL GRIMES

Four days after the 18-hole exhibition match for the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Christmas Basket Fund, which will be played three weeks from tomorrow at Belmont Country Club, Harry Cooper will team with Horton Smith, and Lawson Little will be paired with Jimmy Thomson in the $5000 Hershey Round Robin Four Ball Invitation.

Until this year, Hershey sponsored an open tournament and donated $5000 for a purse.

Alexander Stoddard, who is the publicity director for all of the Hershey projects, prevailed upon the powers that be that "Chocolate Town" would derive far more prestige if the field was restricted to 16 entrants.

He called attention to the success of the Inverness and Goodal round robin invitations, particularly the latter, which cost Elmer L. Ward and his confreres close to $10,000.

COOPER TOPS LIST

Hershey elected its field for the round robin invitation from the standing of professional golfers in the battle for the Harry Vardon Memorial Trophy, which Harry Cooper won last year.

The second Boston American-Sunday Advertiser exhibition match will afford Cooper and Smith, along with Little and Thomson, an opportunity to sharpen their games for the Hershey Invitation.

The fact that Smith, Cooper, Little and Thomson were all "bid" to play in the Hershey Round Robin is conclusive proof that they are the ranking foursome in the professional ranks.

Smith, Cooper, Little and Thomson are playing exhibition matches in the Chicago district, while marking time between the St. Paul and Cleveland opens.

Horton Smith told me over the phone today that Thomson has guaranteed to drive the second green at Belmont, providing, of course, he is not hitting into the teeth of a strong southwest wind.

SMITH SPEAKING

"I've seen Jimmy hit tee shots for some years now but I've never seen him as long as he was at Cincinnati," Smith said.

"Elmer L. Ward, who sponsored the Goodall invitation at Cincinnati, put on a long driving contest.

"Being a golfer himself, the 1930 New England amateur champion, no less, Elmer removed all restrictions as to accuracy. He wanted to see the boys wind up and let fly at those golf agates.

"Well, Jimmy sure did bend into three drives, totalling 1007 yards, for an average of 335, winning by six yards over big Ed Dudley.

"Driving the second green at Belmont should be a breeze for Jimmy," continued Smith, "but I wouldn't be surprised if Little was within hailing distance of his partner off the same tee, providing, of course, he catches hold of one."

Leslie Cottrell, president of the New England Professional Golfers' Association, will referee the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser exhibition match at Belmont.

B's Send Fette Against Rookie

Chicago's rejuvenated Cubs, now under the direction of "Gabby" Hartnett, are in our midst for a single clash today and a twin bill tomorrow to wind up the western invasion at the Beehive.

The Cubs have come from New York, where they slapped the Giants around with great delight.

But if they are under the impression the Stengelmen are going to be as easy, they may be in for a rude surprise.

During this current home stay, the Bees have met three of their western foes and have yet to be whipped in a series.

They have taken seven out of 13 games and do not intend to have their colors lowered, even though Boston baseball fans are solidly behind Charles Leo Hartnett.

Hartnett is selecting rookie Vance Page to oppose Lou Fette today.

Page is a 32-year-old hurler, whom Hartnett secured from Indianapolis last Saturday in exchange for Bob Logan and cash.

This new right-hander had an unimpressive record of only 9 wins against 19 losses last season, but this year he has been a standout.

After 24 games with Indianapolis he left with a record of 15 victories against four losses. In 177 innings he allowed 166 hits, fanned 64 and walked 24.

Gabby is hoping Page turns out to be a sensation, for Dizzy Dean is still far from right.

In fact Dizzy will see no action here in Boston. He has a muscle in his right arm that continually knots up, and this may keep him sidelined indefinitely.

With Dean out, the Cubs' flag chances will go out of the window unless somebody like Page should click.

Today will be a real test for the rookie. In Lou Fette he is facing a hurler who is really traveling on high.

Lou got every bad break a hurler could get in the first two months of the season, but he now has six victories in a row and does not intend to break his streak this afternoon.

Coast Girls Meet In Maidstone Final

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 6 (INS)—Dorothy Workman of Los Angeles defeated Helen Pedersen of Stamford, Conn., 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, in the annual Maidstone Club Invitation Tennis tournament, and today meets Barbara Winslow of Hollywood, Cal., for the championship.

Miss Winslow eliminated Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco, 6—1, 7—5, in her semi-final.

144 Holes in Day!

Grind Nets Broker $30,000 Plantation

CHICAGO, Aug. 6 (INS) — J. Smith Ferebee, 31-year-old broker, today had won full title to a $30,000 Virginia plantation, and had cashed in $500 for himself and $2000 for his friends, by playing 144 holes of golf between daylight and dark with no 18-hole score more than a stipulated 95.

In accomplishing his gruelling physical feat, the youthful sportsman took 687 strokes and 15 hours and 7 minutes to trudge back and forth over the rain-soaked course of the Olympia Fields Club.

It was estimated that he walked between 35 and 40 miles after he first teed off at 5:05 a. m.

Ferebee averaged less than 86 strokes for each of the 18 holes played.

Three downpours of rain delayed him and, although he played each of the early rounds in about an hour and a half, weariness slowed the eighth and final round time to two hours and 10 minutes.

Just as the young broker dropped the ball into the last hole on the last 18, darkness began to steal across the course.

If darkness had closed in on him, or if he had played one round over 95, title to the $30,000 estate would have gone to Fred Tuerk, another La Salle street broker.

A gallery of 1500 fans was at the home tee when Ferabee made his final putt, and a gallery of millions followed the spectacular performance through the newspapers and by radio.

Sun Shines Again for Hose

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 6—As this week started, Joe Cronin's chief worry was the Red Sox pitching staff.

The Fenway squad numbered but five able-bodied hurlers who could be called big leaguers.

Now, as a result of the acquisition of Bill Harris and Joe Heving, the sparkling comeback by Mose Grove and the superb rescue work being done by Jim Bagby, the Hound corps shapes up as stronger than at any other time this year if, indeed, it hasn't become the strongest Cronin has had in Boston.

The amazing Grove guy returned with all the skill and stuff he was flashing before his 38-year-old arm went limp and numb on July 14, causing countless of his admirers to fear that the greatest southpaw ever had finally reached the end of his trail.

If you hadn't known of the mishap, you'd have never guessed that he ever had a sore arm in his life as he cut loose against the Tigers for the first six innings of a game that saw Joe Cronin hit a four-run home run in a five-run rally in the ninth and the Sox finally won, 9—8, in the 10th.

Jim Bagby

Mose lost control for one brief spell, and toiling in intense heat so sapped his strength that he called it a day at the end of the sixth.

When Moses departed the Sox were trailing, 4 to 3, so the ninth inning uprising against Elden Auker saved "Lefty" from his fourth defeat of the year.

Hero Cronin had knocked in the first three Boston runs before producing his 14th and first grand-slam homer of the season.

In the tenth, doubles by Cramer and Vosmik off Tommy Bridges put the Sox in front. And young Mr. Bagby, going to the box in the ninth, saw to it that he gained his ninth win of the year by setting six Tigers down in order on infield chances.

WHAT ABOUT TABOR?

Yes, Cronin's pitching worries are about at an end. But he still doesn't sleep too well.

His problem now is what to do with Jim Tabor when "Pinky" Higgins is able to play again.

The rookie third-sacker is hitting over .300. He's hit safely every day.

Afield, he's made one astounding stop and throw after another. A greater infield play was never seen than a diving clutch he made of a low liner to keep Jo-Jo White off base with what would have been the tying run in the tenth yesterday.

Minneapolis has the Sox promise that he'll be returned to them when Higgins recovers from his leg injury, but it will be a rank injustice to the kid to send him back if he keeps on playing as he has to date.

Selections for Fast Track
BEST BET—ACCOLADE, 5TH RACE

NARRAGANSETT PARK, R. I., Aug. 6—Don Christmas' Accolade, "the people's choice," is my choice to win the $5000 added Roger Williams Handicap here today.

The eight-year-old son of Bright Knight won the Narragansett Handicap by two lengths going away, and the fact that he picks up three pounds and is asked to go two furlongs more than he did on that occasion will not prevent him from showing his class over the field he is asked to face.

FIRST RACE
Scarer, Praetorian, Morcarine

SCARER, third to Chief Gamble and Rippier in only start of the meeting, shapes up superior to less capable maidens such as encountered in the first race. PRAETORIAN, idle since Suffolk Downs, comes strongly recommended by The Clocker. MORCARINE figures next best.

SECOND RACE
Sky Hostess, Rocky Road, Candar

SKY HOSTESS, fourth to Miss Apprehend in most recent race, is dropping down the class ladder and is worthy of another chance. ROCKY ROAD'S only start of the meeting was in the nature of a conditioner and should not be taken too seriously. CANDAR is a money possibility.

THIRD RACE
Tiempo, Brass Monkey, Joy Flag

No telling just how good TIEMPO may be. The aged daughter of Lucky Hour kissed the outside fence at the head of the stretch in her last race, and then came on to win going away from Traggat. BRASS MONKEY, third to Dick Merrill the other day, shapes up only slightly better than JOY FLAG. The latter accounted for his Salem final in grand style.

FOURTH RACE
Mr. Diens, Weary Flower, Vassar

MR. DIENS, on general Arlington Park form, should prove a difficult nut to crack as placed in the fourth. WEARY FLOWER finished third to Icy Wind in her only start of the meeting, but back at Louisville this spring she finished only a neck in back of the top selection.

FIFTH RACE
Accolade, Sun Egret, Preeminent

ACCOLADE will remain in the barn in the event of a muddy track. In that case, the race would seem made to order for A. C. Compton's mud-lark SUN EGRET. The latter finished only a trifle over three lengths behind the top selection in the Narragansett. He has a weight shift of seven pounds in his favor. PREEMINENT for the remainder.

SIXTH RACE
Count Dean, Gallant Gay, Deserter

COUNT DEAN is a difficult horse to ride and would seem a cinch with a strong boy in the irons. He drops five pounds off a recent neck victory over GALLANT GAY. The latter has a weight shift of seven pounds against his chances.

SEVENTH RACE
Midshipman, Jezreel, One Chance

MIDSHIPMAN was backed into heavy favoritism in his last two efforts at Rockingham Park, and he just missed earning brackets in both of those outings by the narrowest of margins. JEZREEL did not do at all badly in finishing fourth to Count Dean in her most recent start. She figures next best in what appears to be strictly a two-horse race. ONE CHANCE usually runs well, but seldom wins.

EIGHTH RACE
U Demon, Offender, Moralist

U DEMON won as his rider pleased from company of this same caliber at Rockingham Park. OFFENDER headed Chancing and others in his only start of the meeting. MORALIST is descending the claiming ladder and will bear watching.

GAYLE MAKINNIE DUELS KELLY

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 6 (AP)—Gayle Makinnie, the Columbus gelding which won 16 out of 21 starts in two seasons, and Kelly, the Cleveland trotter which stole the show from the mighty Greyhound at the recent Goshen meeting, meet today in the $5000 Hanover stake, feature of the closing program of the 10-day Grand Circuit meeting at Agawam track.

There are six others in the stake, including Hanover the Great, Bravo, and Farr, all big winners, but the circuit followers expect a duel between Gayle Makinnie and Kelly.

The $5000 Massachusetts pacing stake is companion piece on the program with a field of 13 named, including Mack Abbey, Dusty Hanover, Alta Direct and Simcoe Harvester, the latter a Canadian invader.

BEST BET—ACCOLADE—FIFTH

Y. D. Christmas' Accolade, mighty sprinter and as game a horse as there is, should turn back a field of the same calibre of horseflesh he whipped last time out in today's fifth at Narragansett.

While the highly regarded Preeminent drops important poundage, I cannot see anything keeping Accolade from getting home in front.

Lombardi, Foxx Top Batters

Jimmy Foxx, Boston Red Sox belter, took over the American League batting pace this week. In the National loop Ernie Lombardi, the Reds' catcher, was still out in front, according to the Associated Press statisticians.

Foxx ousted Earl Averill of the Indians from the junior circuit top spot Averill had held for weeks, being three points to the good this morning.

Boston's "double-x" collected nine hits in 27 chances during the week for a season average of .354. Averill, hitting safely only four times in 19 trips to the plate, dropped nine points to .351.

In the National League, Lombardi fell off four points to .354, but his second-place rival of a week ago, Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals, nose-dived 13 points to .332, and Wally Berger of the Reds slipped into the runner-up spot with .339.

Newcomers in the select top-10 groups were Rip Radcliff of the White Sox, who skyrocketed to a tie for fourth in the American League with .341;; Red Rolfe of the Yankees, in seventh place; Washington's Buddy Myer, batting champion of 1935, in 10th, and Jojo Moore, who came off the hospital list and returned to action with the Giants, in ninth place in the National League.

SOVIET GUNS BLAST JAP TROOPS IN NEW DRIVE

By DON BROWN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 6 (INS)—Marshal Vassily Bluecher's Red army of the East, striking at four points on the Siberian frontier with infantry, tanks, artillery, and airplanes, today brought the Russo-Japanese border struggle to its most explosive stage in two weeks of undeclared war.

Diplomacy, which both Moscow and Tokyo hoped would peacefully end the conflict, was blasted out of the picture with two fresh alleged invasions of Japanese-controlled territory.

Soviet airplanes, backing up Moscow's demand for a Japanese retreat, raided Kozan and the railway settlements of Koje and Shikai in northern Korea. The railroad stations, however, were not hit, said an army bulletin.

60 TANKS JOIN FIGHT

Carrying the war farther north, the war office officially charged, a party of Soviet troops yesterday crossed the Manchukuo border and began to dig trenches near the Manchukuoan village of Mankienshang, 12 miles south of Suifenho.

More than 60 tanks and squadrons of airplanes were thrown into the violent action on two nearby fronts at Changkufeng and Shaotsoaping hills, just above the Korean border.

Two Soviet airplanes were shot down by anti-aircraft guns, the war office said.

Artillery opened the conflict, quickly followed by furious tank and infantry onslaughts. Storming the heights, the Soviet infantry advanced to within 220 yards of the Japanese positions, but they were dispersed and their guns silenced.

DEMAND JAPS OUSTER

The Soviet attacking air force was composed of three scout, three pursuit, and 13 heavy bombing planes, which heavily bombed Japanese positions.

Japanese planes, it was asserted here, remained on the ground.

At the same time, the Japanese version of the diplomatic "peace" conversations carried on in Moscow confirmed that the Soviets' terms were nothing short of complete Japanese capitulation.

'Loop' Riders—Joseph Rogers, 17, Dorchester, whom police say drove auto over Bunker Hill loop, hitting six autos in wild race. He was injured and is at City Hospital. Police say Marie McGrath, Dorchester, shown with him, was in auto during ride. (Story on Page 4.)

1 Dies, 2 Saved In Coal Slide

One Roxbury man was smothered and two others saved by prompt rescue work today, when a staging collapsed at the Tremont Coal Company, 1017 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, burying the victims beneath five tons of coal.

The victim was Samuel Datz, 54, of 120 Howland street, who was pronounced dead after firemen worked with a pulmotor for more than an hour in an effort to save him.

Charles Schoen, 39, of Columbus avenue, and Percy Thibodeau, 25, of Linden Park street, both of Roxbury, suffered superficial injuries.

The three were unloading a car of coal on a spur track when the staging they were standing on gave way.

More than five tons of the rolling coal covered them as they plunged 20 feet downward.

Careful not to dislodge an additional 70 tons in the freight car, volunteers clawed with their hands and shovels to free the imprisoned men.

Firemen from Ladder 12 and the rescue squad quickly revived two of the victims but Datz failed to respond to treatment.

'Lost' From Car In Accident

Mary Grottenback, 28, was in a hurry to get home. She said a hasty goodnight to her escort and stepped out of his car while it was still in motion, police reported.

An instant later she screamed as she lost her footing, and her head struck the curb, in front of her home on Roxbury street, Roxbury.

George Zambruski, of Lowell street, Lawrence, her escort, was startled by Mary's scream, and stopped his car as he reached the bottom of the hill.

John Connelly of Kempton street, Roxbury, who had come along, police said, saw that the young woman was badly hurt, lifted her into his car and rushed her to Roxbury hospital.

Father Dead, 3 Children Ill

Tragedy struck in a South Boston home where a father was dead of a heart attack and three of his children lay critically ill of mushroom poison at City Hospital today.

The dead man is Anthony Alecks, 55, of Dexter street, South Boston.

The poison victims are his children, Wanda, 25; Stanley, 16, and Hedwig, 14. Two other children were stricken but recovered rapidly.
